Readers Theatre

Willy: I want to buy our mother the positively best present ever for her birthday.

Nilly: I absolutely agree. But there is one problem. We have no money.

Willy: We'll have to earn the money. Do you have any ideas?

Nilly: We could open a lemonade stand. It's hot now and people are thirsty.

Willy: Definitely! Where are we going to get lemons, sugar, and cups? We have no money.

Nilly: We'll have to make some money so that we can buy supplies to sell lemonade.

Willy: Let's start a dog walking business. We can advertise around the neighborhood.

Nilly: We have no money to buy posters to advertise. So we'll have to earn some money.

Willy: Certainly, we'll earn money to advertise so that we can walk dogs.

Nilly: Then with the money we earn walking dogs, we'll open a lemonade stand.

Willy: Then with the money we make, we can buy our mother a present.

Nilly: We could have a tasty bake sale to make some money.

Willy: We don't have any money to buy the products to make a cake.

Nilly: We could open a lemonade stand to earn the money.

Willy: That's what we wanted to do in the beginning to buy our mother a present!

Nilly: This is trickier than I thought. We could become fashion models. That doesn't cost any money.

Willy: Our amazingly good looks will earn tons of cash.

Nilly: Let's start working right away on our remarkable tans.
